

Sitting Bull

Birth

- The Indians never really kept track of when and where they were born but Sitting Bull was born in the early 1830's at Bullhead, South Dakota.

Childhood

- He was a Sioux Indian. He always thought every thing over before deciding. After the adults big hunt they would travel to a different camp and they would strap the children to a cradleboard. A cradleboard is a board with a top and they were made of deer skin it would often have decorations like beads. Sitting Bull lived in the Grate Plains.

Family

- I don't know much about his family because the Indans would have these things called bands. A band would have up to 50-100 people they would have brothers, sisters, cousins, uncles, aunts, grandparents, even people that were not blood related.

Education

- Indians don't go to school but their elders teach them. They teach them how to hunt, ride a horse, and lots of other things.

Occupation

- Indians don't necessarily go to work but they do in a way sitting bull went out to hunt and he was distend to be a head chef of a lot of tribes even tough there was no such thing he was desired to be one.

Accomplishments

- Sitting Bull decided to be a chef at the age of 25 but he was only one of many and he was designed that he be greater than that. He was known by many even those who feared him. During the time the whites were taking over the Indians decided to make Sitting Bull the head chef.

Hardship

- All Indians went through the same thing. The Americans were trying to take the Indians land they fought for there land and to have the same life ways. Sitting bull fought for four years after most every one gave up and went to reservations. Reservations are things that the whites made for the Indians to live in.

Sitting Bull

- Sitting Bull got arrested he kept making commotion with the Indians. Some people tried to stop them, but the officers started to shoot and they shot Sitting Bull. 😞
